

LETTER TO THE EDITOR
The West's War on the "Gas of Life"

What if a politician proposed a Bill to reduce the oxygen content of the atmosphere from 21% to less than 19.5%, allegedly to reduce the severity of forest fires? That politician would most certainly feel the outrage of the electorate because achieving such a goal would result in a mass extinction of oxygen-breathing creatures, although on a greener planet.

A mass extinction did occur many years ago but as a result of the natural depletion of atmospheric carbon dioxide ("CO₂", "carbon emission"). (Google: Jim Steele, the Permian Great Dying)

It necessarily follows that everyone should be equally outraged over the West's war on CO₂, a vital plant food known as the "gas of life".

This war on CO₂ has the potential to create a man-made extinction that would eliminate all life on Earth, both plant and animal life. And it is a war driven by the climate-change scam and scientific fraud.

Natural processes have depleted, and are continuing to deplete, the CO₂ content of the atmosphere. What was a very CO₂-fertile atmosphere during the dinosaur era (2,500 ppm) has now been reduced to the current level of 420 ppm, which is dangerously close to the survival threshold level for vegetation (150 ppm).

In the mistaken belief of a CO₂-induced climate emergency, politicians are squandering billions of dollars to accelerate the natural sequestration of CO₂ rather than allowing our CO₂ emissions from fossil fuels to decelerate the depletion rate. Although our reserves of fossil fuels (coal, oil, and natural gas) are insufficient to restore an optimum level of CO₂ for plant growth, such emissions will, nevertheless, significantly extend the green period of the planet.

Furthermore, fossil fuels are essential in sustaining a modern industrial economy and in enabling mankind to adapt to an ever changing climate.

We must not allow ourselves to become victims of the groupthink (aka "mass formation psychosis") being promoted by the climate-change hucksters and fear mongers. Such mass hysteria will destroy Western Civilization and will permit the establishment of a "New World Order"; a Marxist, Orwellian tyranny,

Politicians must take corrective action now before it is too late, starting with the repeal of the carbon tax and the banning of all carbon-capture and storage facilities.
