

War is Awful, So is Agitprop

May 10, 2025

by Warren Watson

Oh, when will Ukraine see the killing end?
Would I speak Russian to save a dear friend?

Agitated propellers hit the air.
The rumours being said hardly seem fair.

He is just like Hitler, and we are good.
Trust us, there is nothing under the hood.

Bureaucracy just cannot be destroyed.
Lives lost and manufacturers employed.

Entropy and massive debt surely rise.
Sounds of registers hide the battle cries.

Black markets are stealing some of the wealth.
The media's silence leads to the stealth.

They only serve to make the air force weak.
Propaganda is sure hard to defeat.

Saving democracy a battle cry.
Cancelled elections and religions tie.

Lonely girls without a love their own age.
Never questioning words of a wise sage.

Did the blob happen stance to lose a son?
Killing to some people is not much fun.

But their hatred drove the motivation.
To destroy too much of God's creation.

Bioweapons research is for our good.
Pandemics to some others steal the food.

More money is sent so brothers will die.
Loving words they hear make nobody cry.

Praying for peace so we can farm and love.
It's too bad hate and death fit like a glove.

Who can be pro money or pro breathing?
Knowing who got rich leaves people seething.

Waving flags do support bullets or grain.
War is awful, so let that fact remain.